

"New Deal" To Continue Says President In Talk At Green Bay, Wisconsin

Roosevelt Declares That New Deal Is Going On and "Neither the Demand Nor the Action Has Reached the End of the Road."

ACTION DELAYED

Says Two Types of Objectors Have Delayed Action But That Movement Goes On.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 9 (P).—President Roosevelt today in Wisconsin gave notice to the nation that the "New Deal" is going on and "neither the demand nor the action has reached the end of the road."

In a state talking about a new party the President pronounced his major declaration of this first campaign year since 1932 and he spoke of his ideas in detail.

"We who support this New Deal," he declared, "do so because it is a square deal and because it is essential to the preservation of security and happiness of a free society."

As for party alignments he remarked significantly: "Your two senators, both old friends of mine, and many others have worked with me in maintaining excellent cooperation between the executive and legislative branches of the government."

Seek Posts Again

Senator Robert M. La Follette, Republican independent and sponsor of the new state political party, is up for re-election. F. Ryan Duffy, Democrat, is the other senator from Wisconsin, elected in 1932.

The President emphasized that: "These high purposes must be accompanied by cooperation among those charged by the people with the duties of government. I am glad to be in a state from which I have greatly drawn in setting up the permanent and temporary agencies of government."

As he spoke of the friends of the "New Deal," the President talked out also about the opposition.

"In one year and five months," he said, "the people of the United States have received at least a partial answer to their demands for action."

"But action may be delayed by two types of individuals."

"First there is the man whose objectives are wholly right and wholly progressive but who declined to cooperate or even to discuss methods of arriving at the objectives because he insists on his own methods and nobody else."

"The other type to which I refer is the individual who demands some message of the people of the United States that will restore what he calls 'confidence.' When I hear this I cannot help but remember the certain made by the government and certain types of so-called 'big business' all through the years 1930, 1931 and 1932 that the only thing lacking in the United States was confidence."

And thus, Mr. Roosevelt declared out here in "a state destined for extraordinary achievements" his principles for the future.

People Back Idea.

"In the great national movement that culminated in 1932," he said, "people joined with enthusiasm. They lent hand and voice to the common cause, irrespective of many older political traditions. They saw the dawn of a new day. They were on the march; they were coming back into the possession of their own home land."

It sounded to some like the call for a political alignment. It was delivered in a state where such is going on.

REPORT SEEING MONSTER IN THE SCOTCH LAKE

London, August 9 (P).—Yes, there is a Loch Ness monster—if you accept the findings of Sir Edward Mountray.

The reported presence of the mysterious marine animal in the Scotch lake has plagued the public curiosity for many months, along with the curiosity of Sir Edward, a leading business man.

Determined to get to the bottom of the thing, he organized a party of 25 watchers. After peering into the lake for a month they report that beyond doubt Loch Ness harbors a "monstrous" monster.

During the month, the patient observers said, they were rewarded 21 times by glimpses of the animal.

TRAIL OF THE CARIBOU AFTER CROSSING OCEAN

London, Aug. 9 (P).—The Trail of the Caribou landed here today after a flight of 21 hours and 43 minutes from Wasaga Beach, Ont.

The fliers, James Ayling and Leonard Reid, had set out to establish a new long distance record with Baghdad, Iraq, as their goal.

Their landing means that they only covered a little more than half of the 6,300 miles they had set as their objective.

When commenting On The Action Of The Common Council In Turning Down His Recommendation To Reduce The Fees For Election Inspectors At The Polls

When asked to comment on the action of the Common Council Tuesday night in unanimously turning down Mayor Heise's recommendation to reduce the fees for election inspectors at the polls, which would have saved the city $2,300.00, the Mayor made the following statement:

"We are now paying inspectors $10.00 a day, with district chairman getting $7.00 extra for filing returns. I recommended $10.00 a day for election day and $5.00 a day for primary and registration days, because I thought that was reasonable compensation under present day conditions. I am sure there are many worthy and competent residents in the various wards who would be glad to serve the city at these rates. The Common Council chose to think otherwise. Thus, political expediency and moral cowardice has won another victory with the taxpayer, as usual, the victim."

I leave the Aldermen to the tender mercies of the taxpayers in their wards who are paying the bills, if when and how they can find the money to pay.

Ten use of public funds as a political grab-bag will continue so long as the people are willing to stand for it."

Commenting on the rates now being paid election officials, which the Common Council refused to reduce at the Mayor's request, another spokesman for the administration made the following point:—It takes a relief worker or employee of Public Works Board, on staggered time, five weeks to earn what an election inspector gets in six days. And it would take a relief worker or public works employee 10 months to earn what was paid last year to two voting machine custodians for 10 days' service.

Block Advancement Of Brownell Bill

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 9 (P).—Assembly Democrats today blocked immediate advancement of the Brownell bill proposing to abolish the present New York city charter revision commission and give Mayor LeGuardia authority to appoint a new commission.

With only a handful of members present, the Republicans were unable to move the bill to the order of final passage.

Assemblyman Carl Pack, Bronx Democrat, objected to action on the measure on the ground that it was too important to be advanced without the full membership present.

"If an objection is made at this time," Assemblyman Herbert Brownell, Jr., New York Republican declared, it can be made only for one purpose and that is to kill this bill."

Without objection the Assembly advanced Mayor LeGuardia's bill providing that New York city may levy special taxes and earmark the returns for unemployment relief.

This measure was sponsored by Assemblyman I. Arnold Ross, New York Republican.

Airplanes On Guard

Constantine, Algeria, Aug. 9 (P).—Seven military airplanes circled constantly over a wide area about Constantine today following reports trouble between Arabs and Jews was brewing at several points.

There was plenty of action, accusations and oratory at the Democratic county convention Wednesday afternoon at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium, and the rather startling disclosure that the county highway department under the administration of Arthur F. Hallinan was building county roads at a saving of between $5,000 and $8,000 a mile over the amounts expended for similar type roads constructed during the administration of James F. Loughran, who was ousted by the 17 Democratic members of the board of supervisors from the position of county superintendent of highways. The convention was also marked by the charges made by Supervisor George of Denning that he had been offered the county chairmanship of the board of supervisors and $5,000 a year for two years, provided he would help elect Supervisor Roscoe Elsworth to the position of county attorney.

Ewig Makes Reply

County Attorney Arthur D. Ewig devoted part of his address before the convention to a discussion of national affairs, and said that since President Roosevelt had assumed office we have heard criticism from the Republican minority party, but if one followed this criticism he would find it to be only of the destructive kind.

Elsworth Chief Actor

Commenting on conditions in Ulster county Mr. Ewig referred to the address delivered by Supervisor Elsworth before the Republican county convention last Saturday. "There was talk then of trained seals and circuses," said Mr. Ewig, "but I need not remind you that the chief circus performer was the one who delivered the talk."

There was also discussion of the Democrats eliminating three offices and creating the position of county auditor and purchasing agent.

Expect To Show Saving

Mr. Ewig said that by creating this office and filling it with capable men the Democrats expected to show a saving of thousands of dollars. He said that the office had been created by an act of the state legislature, and it should not be forgotten that it was a Republican legislature that had passed this legislation.

County Highway Building

Mr. Ewig said that since Mr. Hallinan had become county superintendent of highways that he (Ewig) had traversed various sections of Ulster county and nowhere had he heard any criticism as to the manner in which the county highways were being constructed.

Under Mr. Hallinan's administration, said Mr. Ewig, county highways had been constructed at a saving of between $5,000 and $8,000 a mile. This saving had been effected in constructing roads over similar ground and of similar type to roads previously constructed by Mr. Hallinan's predecessor.

"We have no cause to be ashamed of our acts," said Mr. Ewig, "or of the board of supervisors."

What Ewig Found

Mr. Ewig said that when he took over the office of county attorney he took over the files of his predecessor and found an appropriation of $127,000 for rights of way for roads. He said that he was of the opinion that appropriation was to pay for rights of way to be obtained this year, but that was not so. It was to pay for rights of way that had been obtained some years ago. In fact, Mr. Ewig made the claim that each year under Republican administration appropriations were made each year for obtaining rights of way, but was used to pay for rights of way obtained several years previous, and as a result of that practice, said Mr. Ewig, the Democratic board found that instead of having an appropriation of $127,000 for rights of way they found they had only about $15,000.

In closing Mr. Ewig said that he would have some interesting revelations to make in the future as many things had been discovered that had been long hidden. He said that there was no cause for complaint or criticism of the Democratic board of supervisors which was trying to furnish as much work to idle men as possible through the highway department. He said that next year the supervisors would be Democratic by five or six instead of a majority of 1 as at present.

Supervisor George Talks

It was at this point in the convention that the sensational accusation was made by Supervisor George of the town of Denning who claimed a proposition had been made to him to accept $5,000 a year and the county chairmanship of the board of supervisors and make Supervisor Elsworth county attorney. Supervisor George said he refused the offer made him. This offer was made him, he said, on the day that the board of supervisors was organized but he did not make public the

President Roosevelt Fischer Acquitted But Issues Executive Order His Bartender Is Held To Nationalize Silver For Grand Jury Action

President's Proclamation States Mints Would Be Directed To Receive Any and All Silver in the United States.

AT 50.01 CENTS

Amount Is In Accordance With Provisions of Silver Purchase Act of 1934.

Washington, August 9 (P).—President Roosevelt today issued an executive order providing for the nationalization of silver at 50.01 cents per ounce according to the provisions of the Silver Purchase Act of 1934.

The President's proclamation, made public by Secretary Morgenthau, said the mints would be directed to receive any and all silver in the United States.

The mints will deduct a seigniorage of 61 2-25 percent of the silver so received and will return to the depositor silver certificates or other coin or currency in an amount equal to the monetary value of the remainder.

This means the mints will return for each fine Troy ounce of silver so received an amount equal to 50.01 cents a fine Troy ounce.

The order does not affect domestic silver mined since December 21, 1933, which may still be delivered to the mints under the Presidential proclamation of that date.

All other silver situated in the United States on August 9 (today) must be delivered to the mints within 90 days.

Certain Classes Exempted

Certain classes of silver are exempted. Provision is made for licenses covering silver needed for commercial and industrial uses and to fulfill outstanding contracts to deliver the metal.

Also exempted are all United States silver coins, foreign coins, silver ore, silver owned by foreign governments and foreign central banks, and silver in fabricated articles.

Secretary Morgenthau made the announcement at a press conference. Treasury officials said approximately 45,000,000 ounces of silver were on record as held in depositories recognized by the commodity exchange.

Any statement regarding an amount held outside this figure, they said, would be only a guess. Testimony before congressional committees in connection with silver legislation at the past session was to the effect that from 150,000,000 to 250,000,000 ounces were in private hands.

Pastors Must Give Oath to Hitler

Berlin, Aug. 9 (P).—Germany's Protestant pastors and church officials will be required to take an oath of fealty to Chancellor Hitler, just as Nazi storm troops and members of the regular army did last week.

This important step to secure Hitler uniform support following his assumption of the powers of president, was announced by Dr. August Jaeger, Nazi commissioner for Protestant churches.

Jaeger at the same time explained new rules to be imposed by the national synod today which will deliver the Protestant church into the hands of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, Hitler follower, and the German Christians (Nazi churchmen).

They appear designed to stamp out independent thought and action by the clergy, a considerable number of whom have strongly opposed Mueller's dictatorial steps toward achieving the Nazi program of a unified Protestant church.

The new measures will be voted in to effect by Mueller's rubber stamp synod, called into session without the knowledge of the general public. At the same time the synod is scheduled to disenfranchise itself.

Mueller, who already bears unusual powers, will become supreme lawmaker and church authority.

John A. Fischer, Proprietor of Fair View Inn on Abel Street, Freed on Charge of Liquor Law Violation.

BARTENDER HELD

John Schussler Held for Grand Jury Charged With Selling Liquor Without a License.

One of the several liquor cases to be brought before City Judge Bernard A. Culliton in police court was settled this morning when John A. Fischer, proprietor of the Fair View Inn, Abel street, went free and clear of the arrest that resulted from the sale of alleged liquor, and later a search that netted three alleged five gallon jugs of white grape wine and three cases of other beverages.

Mr. Fischer's acquittal came after some clever defense presented by John M. Cashin, of the Kingston law firm of Ewig & Cashin, and formerly an assistant United States Attorney.

Despite Mr. Fischer's acquittal, his bartender, John Schussler, was held for the grand jury, however, charged with selling liquor without a license. Bail was fixed at $250.

There were six or seven other cases scheduled for trial today, but on motion of Levan Haver, assistant district attorney, representing The People, they were put over until next Thursday, when the entire day will be devoted to their trial.

In trying the Fischer case, Ben Freer, of 145 Jansen avenue, was called to the stand by Attorney Haver to testify for the police. He visited Fischer's, he said, on July 14, between 9 and 10 o'clock at night with another man, George Sherry, saw Schussler and purchased beer and liquor. This was consumed on the premises. They purchased a half pint of whiskey, which he identified in court. The price was 50 cents, Freer testified.

Freer added that Sherry also purchased a half pint of "apple," paid for it and took it with him.

The witness, who said he was 62 years of age and had been drinking "off and on all his life," was asked to identify Schussler in the court room. He descended from the stand and put his hand on the man.

Hired By The Police

Questioned as to how he came to visit the Fair View, Freer said he had been hired by the police and received pay when he worked. He did not say how much, being stopped by an objection offered by Attorney Haver. "I'm a special officer," Freer said, "here's my badge." He displayed a shield on the inside of his coat. Answering the question as to how he came to visit the various places where liquor was allegedly being sold illegally, Freer said he was allowed to use his own judgement.

"You sure can pick 'em," said Attorney Cashin. The witness said he had visited several other places during the day of July 14 and had sampled drinks.

A motion to dismiss the case against Schussler was denied by Judge Culliton who ordered him held for the grand jury.

On completion of the testimony against Schussler, Sergeant Charles Phinney of the police department was called to the witness stand to testify against John Fischer.

Fischer was arrested for the sale of liquor at his place without a license after a search of the premises had netted the police the three five-gallon jugs of grape wine and the three cases of other wet goods.

Sergeant Phinney said he found the seized goods in a hallway leading to the attic. Mr. Fischer was with him on the search and informed him that the wines had been in the house since before prohibition. They were carried out and placed in the police car by Patrolmen George Bowers and Fred Stoudt, who accompanied the sergeant on the search.

Wines Were In The House.

The sergeant in answer to questions asked by Attorney Cashin said that in searching the barroom, cellar, store, and restaurant of Mr. Fischer, no illegal liquor was found. This testimony together with the conversation he had with Mr. Fischer to effect that the wines had been in the house since before prohibition formed the defense which won the case for Fischer.

Attorney Cashin asked Judge Culliton to take cognizance of the fact that the search warrant called for a search of the premises on which Freer and Sherry had purchased the whiskey, and not Mr. Fischer's private dwelling, where the police had found the beverages offered in court as evidence. He argued that the finding of the wines in the Fischer home was no cause for the issuance of a warrant on the liquor selling charge. Mr. Cashin cited the Mullian-Gage act used during prohibition which stated a man's home was free from search unless it could be proved liquor had been purchased in it. "If Sherry and Freer had bought the whiskey in Fischer's home, then argument would be useless," said Attorney Cashin. He added that if a search such as was made at Fischer's was legal, then the enforcement officers of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board and the police would have the right to

Mrs. Antonio To Die In Electric Chair Tonight Unless Governor Acts

Three Times Before She Has Seen Her Number Go Up and Three Times Go Down, But Today, the Governor Has Given No Indication of His Intention.

Ossining, N. Y., August 9 (P).—Tonight, save only for the power and city of his excellency, the governor, Anna Antonio must keep her thrice-broken rendezvous with death.

The courts again have shaken their heads in negation to the self-widowed mother's pleas for life. Her counsel has pounded frantically at every legal door, only to find each one closed. Governor Herbert Lehman, himself—like the condemned woman—a parent of three children, is the only remaining hope.

The death chamber, thrice cheated, is ready again. Not since 1927 when Ruth Snyder—a husband killer, too—sat down to the dynamo's humming death, has a woman died there.

Three times before Anna Antonio, only 29, has seen her number go up, and three times come down. Each time it was the governor, who saved her by the mere lifting of a telephone receiver, the mere scratching of a pen.

But today? The governor has given no indication of his intention. "I have taken no action," he said. Anna Antonio, watching in her tortured mind's eye the hands of a clock racing—racing—wondered and hoped.

Two Men Share Her Fate

Two men share her fate. They are the ones, Vincent Saetta and Samuel Faraci, who stabbed and shot her husband, Salvatore, dead the night before Easter, 1932. She schemed the crime for Salvatore's $5,000 insurance. They did him in. Yet even today, as thrice before, they are but shadows who will shuffle one after the other to death, all but lost to notice as the spotlight burns bright on the woman. They will die just as certainly, but they will be incidents. It is Anna Antonio who dies tonight—a woman, a mother, a husband killer.

Saetta, glum, uncommunicative, lethargic, saved her once. At the very last minute, as the witnesses were gathered, the executioner ready, the condemned woman reconciled, he told a new story. It absolved her from all blame. He killed Salvatore, he said, over a $75 debt.

There are some who think it was a beautiful lie. Saetta, just a background shadow as the light of public interest burns on the woman, did that, they say, for her; took all the blame. But he has no color, nothing to recommend him to notice.

Faraci, too, is colorless. Three times he has faced the chair, each time without apparent concern. If he dies tonight, he most likely will walk to death dully, disinterestedly.

But Anna Antonio?

"They'll have to carry me. I know it. I have stood the suspense as long as I could. Surely the governor won't let them do this to me."

She was too unweary to say a word when, late yesterday, a guard told her that Supreme Court Justice O. Byron Brewster at Elizabethtown had refused her plea for a new trial. She had asked for a new hearing on the strength of new evidence—the testimony of a priest which confirmed her own story.

Perfectly Aware of Gravity

The justice said the new evidence was not such as would have altered the jury's decision.

"I am perfectly aware of the gravity of my decision," he said. "I had, however, that the difficulty of its rendition is due to considerations that have no proper place in the stern administration of justice, eloquent and potent as they may be at the portals of mercy."

These words were Anna Antonio's single solace today. The court had spoken of considerations "eloquent and potent" as presented at "the portals of mercy."

Those portals are at Albany. Governor Lehman sits behind them. "I am remaining in Albany today," he said, and will be available up to the hour set for the execution.

There are three children: Frankie is nine, Marie is seven and Frankie is only three.

Today is Marie's birthday. Each succeeding year—unless the governor acts—Marie will mark her birth anniversary for she will see, dancing in the light of the birthday candles, a woman sitting in a chair—strapped tightly—a hood over her head; her mother.

At 2 a. m. today Mrs. Antonio had not eaten for 24 hours, refusing all food. Sleeping powders were given, say something?

Brinnier Not Active In Politics, Had No Reason To Offer a Proposition

Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., Says His Law Firm Often Represented George Family, Is Flattered Strength Accorded Him.

ELSWORTH DENIES

Says He Never Saw George in Reference to Alleged Bribe and Never Authorized Anyone To Do So.

The statements made by Supervisor or Herbert L. George of the town of Denning from the platform of the Democratic county convention on Wednesday in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium that he had been offered the chairmanship of the board of supervisors and $5,000 a year if he would help elect Supervisor Roscoe V. Elsworth to the position of county attorney, was branded as untrue by both Supervisor Elsworth and his law partner, Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr. of the law firm of Brinnier & Elsworth.

Mr. Brinnier, in reply to the charges made by the Democratic supervisor today, issued the following statement:

"I have read the charge made by Herbert L. George, printed in the Kingston Daily Leader, on August 9, and in reply would say: I never offered Mr. George or anyone else any proposition such as stated by him nor any other proposition relative to the Board of Supervisors, elected in 1933. I have not taken an active interest in politics as people of this county know, for some years, but have confined my activities to the practice of law. Why would I offer $5,000 a year for a position for my partner which pays about $3,500? Where would the money to pay the $5,000 come from?"

Mr. George and his family as long as I can remember during the lifetime of my father and myself, have been clients of our office. They transacted business with me on numerous occasions, business with us, and it was customary for them, when they were in Kingston, to call at the office socially. This relationship continued with me after my father's death. At about the time of the organization of the Board of Supervisors, Mr. George called at the office and stated he was seeking the chairmanship of the Board. I said to him that "You are entitled to something for your years of service and support of your party." Further, than that no conversation was had between Mr. George and myself, relative to the organization of the Board of Supervisors. Because of a speech made by my partner, Mr. Elsworth, in the recent Republican Convention, it seems to me a small and poor reason why I should be slandered and libeled by the Democratic party or any individual thereof. My friends and acquaintances consist of both Democrats and Republicans and I feel somewhat flattered by the implication, placed in a position of such political strength that I could deal out positions of $5,000 a year without consulting my constituents or leaders of the party.

Dated, August 9, 1934.

WILLIAM D. BRINNIER, JR.

Elsworth Statement.

Supervisor Elsworth also made the following statement today:

"In such time as I have had to give consideration to the alleged statements, as reported in the local press, made by Herbert L. George, of the Democratic County Convention held in this city on August 8, it appears to me that while no direct charge is made against me, the implication and reflections that may be drawn therefrom are so vicious in character and so serious in consequences that I must honor them with this reply and denial."

I hereby publicly and unequivocally state that never at any time did I see, in my office or elsewhere, Herbert L. George, in reference to or discuss with him the organization of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors for the years 1934-1935, or the officers thereof, including county attorney. I further publicly and unequivocally state that no person or persons at my direction, or with my knowledge, or with my consent, including my partner, William D. Brinnier, Jr., saw him in reference to said matters or discussed said matters with him at the time stated by him or at any other time.

DEMAND FOR LIQUOR NOT WHAT EXPECTED

Consumption Is Not a Half That of Pre-Dry Era.

WASHINGTON—Enter the American mind for a moment and what is found to be the background is a long and bitter struggle. Whatever the cause, it now appears that the consumption of legal liquor in the first year of repeal will be considerably less than half the amount consumed in a normal year of the pre-Volstead era.

The legal liquor industry that sprang up almost overnight after 13 years of dryness is finding the dream of quick profits only a dream and heavy losses are threatening to close down distilleries and retail establishments throughout the country. Imported wines and liquors are lying in warehouses and there is more than ample liquor now on hand to satisfy even an unprecedented demand.

In short, figures issued by the Treasury department and by the code authority for the distilling industry indicate a surprising failure on the part of the drinking public to consume the amount of liquor it had been expected to consume on the basis of past performance.

Blame Bootleggers

Spokesmen for both the government and the distilling industry were inclined to attribute this failure to the continued competition of illicit liquor, rather than to any loss of appetite on the part of drinking Americans. They blamed the high price of legal liquor and representatives of the industry went further to blame the high prices on high taxes.

What with federal taxes of $2 a gallon, state taxes ranging even higher in some places, and heavy licensing fees in nearly every locality, members of the industry argue, prices of legal liquor cannot be low enough to compete with the prices of illegal liquor on which no tax is paid at all.

Moreover, according to the industry's spokesmen, repeal did not completely change the drinking habits developed during the thirteen years' reign of the bootlegger. The illicit dealer is still highly patronized, they declare, and in one quarter it was estimated that for every gallon of legal, tax paid liquor consumed, two gallons of illicit, untaxed liquor is sold.

During prohibition, it is estimated, some 100,000,000 gallons of bootleg liquor were consumed each year, and the legal liquor industry argues that because of high prices, which they blame on high taxes, much of this huge illicit traffic still exists.

Dr. James M. Doran, chairman of the Distilled Spirits Institute, distillers' code authority, estimates that more than 36,000,000 gallons of legal liquor will be consumed this year on the basis of consumption up to June. This, he pointed out, is just about half the amount of liquor consumed in even the leanest pre-prohibition years. Annual normal consumption prior to the dry era, according to Doctor Doran, was about 84,000,000 gallons a year.

Imports Are Down.
While the domestic industry is confronting a serious problem due to the unexpectedly low demand for legal spirits, the foreign producer and importer is likewise faring badly in the American market, figures compiled by the Treasury department indicate.

Since repeal became a reality on December 5, the treasury disclosed, imports of liquor have totaled 8,264,227 gallons. Prior to that date, some 40,111 gallons were on hand in bonded warehouses, bringing the total supplies of foreign liquor in this country up to June 30 to 8,348,338 gallons.

Only 8,748,318 gallons have been withdrawn, however, leaving 4,600,020 gallons of imported whiskies and spirits still unused in the warehouses. Allowing for present stocks on retail shelves, the treasury's figures would indicate that less than 3,700,000 gallons of foreign liquor have been consumed in this country in the eight months since prohibition ended.

At the same time the lack of demand has caused importers to fall far short of the amount of foreign liquor they expected to bring to American shores after prohibition ended. Imports have amounted to only two-fifths of the quotas allowed by the control board for the period between December 5 and April 30. Only about one-fifth of the December-April quota, moreover, has moved into consumption channels.

Moscow and Leningrad Police in New Uniforms

Moscow, U. S. S. R.—The police of Moscow and Leningrad (they're called militia in the Soviet union) now are the envy of their comrades in other Russian cities.

They have dropped their dull olive drab uniforms for sprightly new costumes consisting of gray-blue trousers and a short dark-blue coat, something like those of the French "ajean."

Meanwhile, the police in the provinces, not so fortunate as their urban brothers, continue to wear drab olive.

Latin America Is Topic Before Rotary

The Latin American region with its contrasts and business which was discussed before the Rotary at the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday noon when Harold Lawton of Woodstock spoke from years of personal experience in South America and he brought an unusual message to his listeners as he depicted this pioneer land that offers unlimited opportunities to the business man.

Speaking of contrasts, Mr. Lawton said that the Latin American region was that more than anything else. It is a land of extremes—riches and poverty, of beautiful cities and dense jungles, of idealistic men who drive hard bargains in their business dealings. Such a land, said the speaker, offers vast opportunities to men with little capital because that is not essential to be successful there. It offers politeness, persistency, and honesty to make a fortune in Latin America today, and those people and companies with an understanding of the people are becoming rich in this land of great natural resources.

WHAT IS IT?
First time you meet or overtake this queer looking vehicle personally "tagging" the middle of the road, don't mistake the driver the "keep-to-right" rule does not apply to him.

And it will take you quite a while to skirt around the car, because its wheelbase is just 24 feet or 288 inches.

What is it? It is one of a fleet of vehicles used by the the State of Indiana for painting paved highways with that long white or yellow line running over the center of roads.

The machine also sprinkles heated asphalt and gravel on road shoulders.

The nucleus of the outfit is the popular Dodge 1½-ton chassis with rear axle narrowed to the road vehicle's 36-inch tread.

THREE SCHOOL GROUPS HELD JOINT MEETING.
Highland, August 9.—The annual school meeting of the districts of Lloyd, Marlborough and New Paltz has held at the school house Tuesday evening with an attendance of 400 people.

The president of the trustees, Mrs. J. D. Rose, called the meeting to order and asked for nominations for a chairman. J. Wells Weaver nominated Mrs. Rose, while Allan Hasbrouck nominated Walter Hasbrouck, who was elected.

The secretary read the minutes of the meeting of last year which were accepted. Separate slips containing the expenditures of last year and the budget for this year were passed about the audience. The total amount expended last year was $107,454.28 and the amount asked for this year is $106,006.00. This amount was adopted.

John P. Whitley, whose land joins that of the school property and the playground, had offered 1.8 acre of land to the district, conditioning that it was fenced in. Mrs. J. D. Rose explained how the gift came to be made, gave the boundaries and said the cost of the fence was included in the budget. This was voted upon by the raising of hands.

J. Wells Weaver moved that the secretary send the thanks of the district to Mr. Whitley in writing.

In voting for the trustees for a term of five years the name of Charles Imbrie Richards was proposed by Walter R. Seaman and J. Wells Weaver nominated Miss Grace von B. Roberts to succeed herself. Philip T. Schantz and Thomas Hopper called on the names while the Messrs. Josephine Castana, Dorothy Weaver, Mrs. Harry B. Coutant and Peter Aielien copied them. The tellers were Howard E. Wilcox and Mrs. William Denby. Of the 395 ballots cast Mr. Richards received 257, Miss Roberts 128, with 8 ballots spoiled.

The vacancy caused by the death of Eugene Leveque left a two-year term to be filled and the name of William H. Maynard and that of J. D. Lester was proposed for the place. The vote counted 344, with 10 spoiled, leaving 235 for Mr. Maynard and 106 for Mr. Lester. Mr. Hasbrouck was declaring the meeting adjourned when Walter R. Seaman proposed that section 303 of the educational law be used in the future. This was explained as that the meeting to pass on the budget and transact such other things that may arise be held on one date and the voting for a trustee be held on another date, between certain hours. This motion carried.

Horse Speedier Than Man
No man has been able to run as fast as the speediest horses. A pacing horse has made the mile in 1 min. 55 sec., or at the rate of 31.3 miles an hour; a trotting horse has made it in 1 min. 56.7 sec., or at the rate of 30.8 miles an hour. The fastest mile by a human runner was made in 4 min. 9.2 sec., or at the rate of 14.4 miles an hour.

Old Fashion Housecleaning Given White House This Summer

By JEAN JARVIS
Copyright, 1934, by Consolidated News Features

Washington, Aug. 8.—While the wayfaring presidential family was imminently due in Washington, the White House this week presented a scene difficult to visualize by those accustomed to the picture of a mansion spick and span, everything in its accustomed place—ready at any hour to receive even the most casually arriving notable.

Currently it's a case of turnabout and change on every hand. There's been a lot going on behind the scenes these hot summer days. Everybody concerned has been at his post, on the job of seeing personally to the safe and proper disposition of a motley collection of dislodged furniture, odds and ends of historic treasure, big and little—plate, china, glass and the hundred and one items which, properly assembled, go to make up the distinctive charm and beauty of the executive mansion.

Everything to the most minute detail of general furnishment and equipment has to be tagged, tabbed and set aside with meticulous particularity and duly inventoried. No rummaging about for this or that when the grand day comes for a general reappearance and a resumption of the old time set-up of the several state apartments.

WOULD REPLACE CLARKE WITH JAMES CONWAY.
Albany, August 8.—The New York State Farmable Fruit Commission of which Senator John T. McMan of New York City is chairman has petitioned Governor Lehman to appoint James S. Conway of Marlborough as a member of the commission in place of Walter S. Clarke of Marlborough.

Mr. Conway is assistant treasurer of the Hudson River Fruit Exchange and one of the largest individual fruit growers in the Hudson valley region.

The commission is making a survey of the principal fruit growing counties to ascertain how severe the damage to fruit trees amounted to in the severe cold last winter. And experts to make a definite announcement at an early date regarding the proposal to cut down old and diseased fruit trees as an important part of the program.

The program is regarded by the New York State Horticultural Society as of primary importance in the conservation of the horticultural resources of the state. It is known that more than 65,000 acres of fruit bearing trees were devastated by the frost last winter, and the owners, in many instances, are without funds to replace them.

THE WORLD'S NEWEST, BIGGEST, MOST MODERN REFINING UNIT TO CREATE

new-action

PROCESS PROTECTED BY U. S. PATENTS

TO create "New-Action" Orange American Gas with existing refinery facilities was impossible. We had to build a new refinery—to adapt an entirely different principle of refining to produce "New-Action" Orange American Gas.

MORE ENERGY FROM THE CRUDE OILS

Up to now a great deal of the energy and other valuable properties in basic crude oil have been going to waste. With existing equipment, it has been impossible to convert the full value of the raw crudes into finished gasoline.

The petroleum industry has spent millions trying to put more of the undeveloped properties in the raw crude to work. And that's just what's been accomplished in the mammoth new refining unit just completed by the American Oil Company at Texas City, Texas.

NEW SUSTAINING* POWER

By a new and different refining principle, "New-Action" Orange American Gas is scientifically balanced, has no idle components, no dead or waste ends, and what's more, has greater SUSTAINING* POWER. The superior properties built-in the gasoline at the refinery "stay put" under actual working conditions in your motor, with less loss of efficiency between refinery and road performance than has ever before been possible.

NEW PERFORMANCE ON THE ROAD

That ability of "New-Action" Orange American Gas to sustain its quality is distinctly new among gasolines. It is of the utmost value to you, as a motorist, concerned with the quality of the gasoline you put into your car, rather than with its quality at the refinery.

"New-Action" Orange American Gas brings you sustained new action—better anti-knock—surer power—easier riding—quicker starting—readier acceleration—more miles—better performance and lower costs!

Try "New-Action" Orange American! It's truly the last word in regular gasoline—years ahead of any regular gasoline you've ever used—tomorrow's gasoline today. Sold at regular gas price by thousands of American dealers and stations from Maine to Florida and inland.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS about the world's biggest, best, newest refining unit at Texas City, Texas

The refinery covers 450 acres of land.

It required an average of 2,600 men per day—a period of nine months to actually construct the refinery (aside from time consumed in planning).

The refining unit is the most modern in the world—adopting the latest discoveries and innovations in the art of refining.

An idea of the mammoth size of the refining unit can be obtained from the following:

1. In a single operating day, this unit will produce enough gasoline to run an average automobile 9,500,000 miles, or about 360 times around the earth at the equator.
2. Six 8-room houses could be set inside a single one of its furnaces.
3. One of its fractionating towers—most massive ever built—is as high as a seven-story building.
4. 403½ miles of piping were used just in two furnaces to provide the required heat exchange surface.
5. This unit will turn out enough heavy bunker oil in a single day to produce, if used in making electric power, current sufficient to provide the home lighting requirements of 2,000,000 people.
6. In addition, large quantities of kerosene, furnace oil for home heating, and gas are made.

A New Type of Shirt-waist Dress for Fall

The situation that the summer dress of summer has led for the great majority of women is responsible for the very definite removal of the skirt and waist theme that is poured in daytime dresses for fall. The vogue of the suit, the top coat and the mixed ensemble has had the influence on the use of new combinations of fabrics in one frock, and many of the smartest shirtwaist frocks for the coming season are of silk crepe, lame, satin, or velvet in the bodies, and wool in the skirt.

The model shown in the illustration has a tailored skirt of wool. Its cut does not differ greatly from the slim, straight, wearable skirts that we have enjoyed so much this summer. Central interest, in the front and the back, are trends that will continue, with restraint, in most of the morning and street frocks. The skirt length that is regarded as correct in this type of clothes is ten inches from the floor. Almost every type of wool is in evidence this season. Jersey, with threads of metal knitted through it, is an attractive new-comer. Tweeds of monotonous showing a deep diagonal weave, and a very hairy surface resembling the rabbits' cloth of last season, are highly thought of. Other wools are light, spongy and crepey, while still others have multicolored polka dots woven in silk over their soft, flexible surfaces.

The dress sketched has a metallic jersey skirt and the waist is of satin. Despite its two-piece appearance the waist and skirt are seamed together beneath the belt. This unlooked for construction is seen in many of the finest frocks in the more exclusive collections.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks black, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, or laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just clogs in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, old bile and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in pimples. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain no harmful, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't take for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. Read directions. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Lingerie Ensemble

Edited by LAURA I. BALDT, A.M.
For many years Assistant Professor of Household Arts,
Teachers College, Columbia University, New York

Smartness begins with the undergarments. If they are poorly fitting, they will cause conflicting lines to your outer garments. Notice the slip has a brassiere top and how beautifully it moulds the rest of the figure. Crepe de chine or flat crepe is a very practical choice. Crepe satin is exquisitely lovely and wears exceedingly well too. At the remnant counter you'll find excellent quality silks suitable for this ensemble at considerable reduction in cost.

Style No. 3105 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 35, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 2 1/2 yards of 39-inch material with 1 yard of binding for the slip; and 1 1/4 yards of 39-inch material with 2 yards of binding for the panties.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

Mo'rie Merrick

Mo'rie Merrick, star of stage and screen, who prefers New York to Hollywood, is giving a series of lectures, giving you some tips for success.

By MIRIAM HOPKINS

Copyright, 1934, by The North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc. Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 8.—The trouble with most of us is just one thing. We allow too many persons to influence our lives.

Here are my definite rules for what success I have attained. First, of all, don't take advice. Follow your own decisions. Think over very carefully the situation, make up your own mind and do it. Second, have a distinct understanding with yourself as to what you want out of life.

Then, please understand me when I make the above statement about advice. The world is filled with two classes of persons. First those who really mean well, and give us their best, wishing to help. These should be listened to, but not necessarily followed. Often what they say will clear the situation in one's own mind.

The other class of persons is made up of busy-bodies who go around giving free advice without an honest thought of helping. By the time a girl has worked a few years she learns to distinguish.

I believe that no one can make up the mind but the person involved. That is why I never take advice without making up my mind before I consult others—then I listen gratefully to them and convince myself that I am right, or wrong. Sometimes, I am changed.

In my particular case, however, my success has come from my own decisions. My agent in New York, my family and friends, all of whom meant well, advised me against leaving the field of musical comedy. I was getting ahead, and they saw disaster to my career if I tried other lines. However, I followed my own hunch.

Then came the question of my coming into pictures. Again they all told me to stay on the stage. I have deep set eyes and they are quite light in color. My friends did not realize that improved photography takes care of the color, and that my type doesn't have to be "perfectly" beautiful. I feel that I have accomplished more in films than I would have done in New York, so again I was right.

Then came the question of my adopting Michael, my boy. Everyone threw up hands in horror of my assuming this responsibility. They couldn't realize that I wanted this anchor; that I was tired of having nothing to hold me to any certain spot. So I took him. Likewise, flood of advice poured in when it was learned that I was buying an expensive piece of ground in New York for a home. I have worked for my own money—it is mine to enjoy, and I want a home. The fact that I picked this particular one is a peculiar fancy of mine, just as other persons decide on their residences. I paid no attention to those who prophesied disaster financially, but thought the place, and I am sure it is worth what I paid, and will increase.

So, going against good advice, well meant, I have everything in life women want. I have my home, my baby, my career, happiness and success. Had I remained in New York, they might have come just the same, but this way, I have them in the way I want to get them. I knew just what life meant to me: Without a home and a baby I was not happy. Now I am. I have harmed no one. I got everything by hard work. I am certain that I deprived no one else of a job, for acting is an individual interpretation.

Life isn't nearly as difficult as it is pictured. I do not believe in luck. I think preparedness is the essential thing. If young folks could but realize that they must improve each opportunity in order to grasp every straw, they would have made much progress. Those who build a future on luck or "breaks" are destined for disappointment. Have an ideal in life—work toward it—let no one sway you—be honest with yourself—and you will not fail.

Thomas Sees New Era of Prosperity

Washington, Aug. 9 (AP)—The nationalization of silver was hailed today by Senator Thomas (D-Okla.), a senate silver bloc leader, as "the overthrow of the world-wide gold bloc."

He forecast it would bring an international agreement on money "which will be the beginning of a new era of prosperity."

Sham Battle Kills One, Injures Three

Burwell, Neb., Aug. 5 (AP)—A sham battle today to find the source of real bullets which whistled through the grandstand at a cavalry troop sham battle, killing one spectator and injuring three others.

A cavalry troop from Fort Riley, Kas., staged a sham battle last night as part of the annual Burwell rodeo. The lights were shut off so the gunfire would appear more spectacular. The firing began.

Seven year old Billy Snyder slipped forward in his chair, mortally wounded. Persons nearby were struck as they heard bullets whizzing past their heads.

The casualties were not learned until the lights were turned on. Then commanders of the cavalry said they doublechecked their ammunition and were positive all the shells were blank cartridges.

The injured were a son of Buck Krause of Burwell, who was wounded in the leg and a son of E. F. Hahn of Burwell, who was wounded in the hand; and a barber identified only as Brown and who was said to be traveling with the cavalry troop.

Daring Adventure On Long Boat Trip

Phoenix, Aug. 9 (AP)—An exciting tale of adventure during a perilous 365-mile boat expedition down the Colorado river was told here today by the leader, Clyde Eddy, leader of the Royal Geographical Society, London, and member of the Explorers Club of New York.

The photographic and scientific expedition, which required 150 days, ended at Mesquite Lake, near Las Vegas, Nevada, Tuesday.

Despite frequent capes of the four boats, narrow escapes from drowning and minor injuries to a few of the party, the voyagers were able to avert serious accidents.

Eddy told of burying the skeleton of a man, probably a prospector, found at Vasey's Paradise. Both legs were broken, apparently from a fall over a steep cliff.

The expedition was undertaken primarily to complete a still and motion picture record started during Eddy's 1927 trip down the canyon.

Relics of historical interest found on the trip have been sent to the Museum of Natural History in New York, Eddy said.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Flashes of Life
Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

Just Another Jaunt.

Omaha, Neb.—The nonchalant gentleman from New York, walking his dog on the Union Station platform, was quite undismayed when the train pulled out without him.

Despite the fact that he was garbed only in pajamas, with a pair of pants pulled over them, he hurried to a taxicab and thence to the airport.

When he overtook the train by plane at Creston, Ia., his wife greeted him: "You would do something like that!"

For the President.

Milwaukee, Wis.—When President Roosevelt stops here for ten minutes, nine presents will be loaded on his train—nine cases of beer, one from each of Milwaukee's large breweries.

Lock the Door.

Uniontown, Pa.—Anton Pepe, Oliphant, store keeper, remembered the old proverb and went to lock his stable door with the horse still there.

When he returned to his store, the door of which he had left unlocked, he found thieves had stolen $30 from the cash register.

Beer Foam and Fact.

Tacoma, Wash.—How long does the foam last on a glass of beer? Only 15 minutes, ruled Police Judge E. J. Hackett, and the decision cost Bruno Demetichini a $100 fine.

A city ordinance forbids sale of beer after 1 a. m. State police testified they entered Demetichini's beer parlor at 1:40 a. m. and found three persons with glasses of beer—on which there was still foam. The defendant had claimed the beer was served before 1 a. m.

Extra! Use for old Razors Found: Regina, Saskatchewan—At last they've found a use for old razor blades—and Wascana Lake has had its first shave.

Hundreds of old blades were strung on wires, weighted to hold them to the lake bottom, and the words were "shaved" off.

San Francisco—A hard-working thief stole a 16-foot solid brass railing, removing 12 heavy screws to take it from its concrete base. Now police are wondering if he will find a "fence" to buy his fence.

Southernmost Weather Station

The world's southernmost settlement is monopolized by weather men. It is Laurie island, in the South Orkneys, on the verge of the Antarctic, where Argentina maintains a weather station.

Before marriage a young man will often tell his betrothed that he would go to the end of the world for her if necessary. And after they are married sometimes she wishes he would.

The central west, heart of the drought and heat-ridden area of the nation, counted on a cool wave from Alaska and northwestern Canada today to break the present hot spell.

Warmer weather, however, was forecast for the middle Atlantic and south portion of the north Atlantic states.

Temperatures soared yesterday to new record breaking heights in the central west.

The east, generally speaking, also felt the effects of the hot spell, but New York City escaped with a comfortable maximum of 78.

Mellon in Scotland

London, Aug. 9 (AP)—Andrew W. Mellon, former American ambassador to Great Britain, arrived in London last night and left today for Scotland on a visit to his daughter.

"Cables," Money Market

The term "cables" is a money market term for cable orders or cable transfers, also a money market report term under which the rates of exchange for such orders or transfers are quoted. According to "Escher's Foreign Exchange Explained," the prices of sight draft and long bills are based on the price of cables.

The first thing in the morning the foreign exchange banker, say in New York, receives a cablegram from his correspondent in London, telling him just what the rate on New York is over there. With this information on hand, he is in a position to commence buying and selling. The rate for cables having been established, it is easy enough to fix the price of demand drafts, the latter being cheaper by an amount corresponding to 10 days' interest.

When a banker sells a cable he makes immediate payment out of his balance abroad. When, however, he sells a sight draft, his balance abroad remains undisturbed for eight or nine or ten days, which is the quickest time in which the draft he has sold can be presented for encashment. Naturally he will charge less than when he sells a cable and loses the use of his money at once.

Siamese Woodpecker Paratide

The Siamese rufous woodpecker has a decidedly easy existence at the expense of an industrious species of ant that lives in the thick jungles of its native country, according to a Washington ornithologist, who has studied the bird life of Siam, Indo-China and other little known lands of southeast Asia. The ant, says the Detroit News, make large lumpy nests high among the branches of the jungle trees, presumably out of wood pulp chewed up in their jaws. When nesting time comes for the woodpeckers, which at other times of the year inhabit the giant bamboo thickets, these birds repair to the jungle habitat of the ants and bore holes into the latter's paper mache-like nests to make homes for their own young. As though adding insult to injury, the woodpeckers not only speck on the ants for homes but feed their offspring on their host and their larvae.

GALVANIZED WARE OF ALL KINDS

... all He wanted to do was sell tomatoes

but He helped make You HEALTHY

the Year
'Round!

NOT so many years ago the round, red fruit of a certain vine was called a "love-apple." A man in his right mind would no more eat it than he would go out and munch a toadstool. It was supposed to kill you at the very first bite! Then some hardy soul decided to "bite and see!" And so the delicious tomato was introduced to a hungry world.

But news of the new tomato traveled very slowly. Your children might not be keeping healthy with it today if a grocer somewhere in an old-fashioned town hadn't been "stuck" with a bushel or two. Faced with a loss if they rotted, he threw discretion to the winds and ran an ad in the paper.

"TOMATOES FOR SALE. This fine new fruit said to be excellent for the health and complexion. I have a choice few. Fifteen cents apiece."

Mr. Grocer sold the lot, ordered more, sold those and presently was able to cut his price in half and then some while babies waxed fat on tomato juice.

CONVENIENCES GRANDMA NEVER DREAMED OF

As with tomatoes, so with vacuum cleaners, safety razors, oil burners and the latest hat from Paris. The merchants who advertise them to you have no burning desire to make this world a healthier, smarter, more leisurely place to live in. They want to sell vacuum cleaners, safety razors, oil burners and lovely hats—and advertising is the best way to do it. But their advertising has told you about a lot of things you'd hate to be without today. Their advertising has introduced you to comforts and conveniences your grandmother never even dreamed of! And—because all wise buyers read advertising—Mr. Merchant sells more advertised goods and can keep on lowering the price to you.

Reads like a romance, doesn't it? But you can prove it for yourself. As you check through the ads in the Daily Freeman today just count the number of things that make life pleasant which you might never have heard about if you hadn't "seen them in the ads." And count the number of things you'd like to buy but couldn't afford (like tomatoes at fifteen cents apiece) if advertising hadn't made them so cheap and plentiful.

Perhaps you'll agree—we could get along without advertising—along with tomatoes and fountain pens and electric fans and swell silk stockings at 69c.

But, honest—wouldn't it be a tiresome old world?

AD-SHOPPING MAKES YOUR BUYING DOLLAR GO MUCH FARTHER!

Ever play the game of ad-shopping? It's a great pastime and a grand time-and-money saver. Just make a list of what you want and need. Then check your list against the things you see advertised in the Daily Freeman. Compare prices to your heart's content. Make note of anything you see advertised that you may have overlooked in planning your shopping list. Now you're ready to go—without wasting the day tramping endlessly from one store to another. You'll come home fresh as a daisy.

Oh, but wait! Just add up the prices of the advertised items you are going to buy. Good deal less than you thought it would be, isn't it? That's what puts the biggest thrill in ad-shopping! You usually have enough money left over to buy something extra-nice and personal for yourself!

'Wife On Approval' At Schoentag Theatre

"Wife On Approval" opened last evening at the Schoentag Theatre before a large audience. It was a convincing story of a trial marriage that did not work out.

To Mrs. Morely's boarding house came Marie and Willard, young things smitten by the wand of Eros, who had not married, but were trying it out for one year.

During the latter part of the year Willard, who is an engineer, is called away to South America. Marie pleads to go with him, but he does not think it advisable, as he had already told his boss that he was single.

During his absence Henry, a neighbor who lives in the same house, moves into the picture and forces his attentions on Marie.

The story is cleverly worked up to a climax and when Willard returns the Brewster begins.

The situation is saved by Mrs. Morely. Janet Hill takes the part of Mrs. Morely and Ruth Browder, that of Marie. Willard is played by Sam Wood and Bert Keller ably portrays the part of Henry. Mrs. Miller, another neighbor living in the boarding house, is very well taken care of by Marion Byrne.

Friday and Sunday nights, along with "Wife On Approval," the Schoentag Theatre will present two vaudeville acts. The first will be the Hummel Sisters and the other will feature the Hayseiders.

DARTHEA

By R. H. WILKINSON

A Real Story—WNU Service.

"NOW take my Gene," said the dominating Mrs. Metcalf. She sighed wearily.

"He's such a darling husband, comparatively speaking, of course. But as he's so utterly incompetent when it comes to taking care of himself, I've often wondered how a man would really get along without a woman to take care of him."

The ladies of the Afternoon Tea club nodded and murmured their assent.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM AT SAHLER SANITARIUM.

The last week-end was made particularly bright and happy at the Sahler Sanitarium by the presence of a few of its old-time friends who participated in a little service of inspiration and beauty on Sunday morning.

These were Mr. and Mrs. Bethune Grant, Jr., of Johnstown, Mrs. Fred J. Goetz of Schenectady and Miss Clara Almee Gottschalk of New York City, all of whom contributed largely to the success of Dr. Sahler's first summer school in 1933.

Mrs. Grant, a fine musician and organist, accompanied her former choir singer, Mrs. Goetz, in several groups of songs. Mrs. Goetz is active in church and concert work in Schenectady. Her delightful soprano voice and charming personality warmed the hearts of her appreciative audience.

Mr. Grant, a retired clergyman, editor and manager of the Glensville publication, "Gloves," gave a fine talk, full of helpful inspiration. It took the form of impressions of the Sanitarium as viewed through the years. As a patient and warm friend of its founder, the late Dr. Charles Oliver Sahler, he is specially fitted for this, and his appreciative understanding of, and sympathetic feeling for the man and his ideals were all keenly felt by his listeners.

Miss Gottschalk having opened the evening's exercises with a short reading of which "Joy" was the keynote, closed the program with a group of piano solos.

well, admitted they could not be the regarded forever.

They must be taken, answers found. Had she been a little less...
Did these women know things that she had been told to?

Were they laughing at her, going her?

Was Neal actually interested in Bette Oliver?

Keeping rendezvous with her. It wasn't an impossibility.

Such things had happened before. She shuddered as thoughts leaped into her mind of other women who had gone blindly ahead, loving, adoring, not even suspecting their husbands of infidelity.

Only in the end to have the hurt more poignant, more lasting.

There was a dance that night at the country club.

All the Afternoon Tea women were there with their husbands.

Bette Oliver was there, and a dozen other young, unmarried women.

It was a gay affair.

Darthea had always been a little proud to think that the women who attended the country club dances were infatuated with her handsome husband.

She liked to think that he was hers forever and ever and that she was envied.

Tonight it was different.

She followed him with her eyes. She watched his every movement.

She tried to stifle the hurt when she saw him dancing with other women, smiling into their faces.

She tried not to notice that he seemed to enjoy being with Bette Oliver.

She fought against sudden knowledge that his attentions to her, his wife, were doubtful.

And when toward the end of the evening she saw Neal step through the french doors on to the veranda, saw Bette Oliver follow a moment later, it was with a masterful attempt at self-control that she withheld a scream.

She could not resist the impulse to follow, to satisfy the burning curiosity that was eating at her soul.

She left her partner abruptly, rudely, skirted the dance hall, gained the veranda through a door at the far end of the room.

It was a beautiful summer's night. The great expanse of golf course that fell away at the base of the veranda was flooded with soft, silvery moonlight.

A section of the veranda, the end near which Darthea stood, was in shadow.

She saw dim figures leaning against the railing—a man and a woman.

Darthea slid along the side of the building, noiselessly, suppressing her breathing.

She heard whispered voices—and then abruptly her blood froze.

The girl was Bette Oliver!

There was no mistaking that baby-like profile, etched as it was against the bright moonlight beyond.

Darthea clutched at her throat, felt suddenly weak and sick.

Then it was true!

Mrs. Metcalf and the other women had been laughing at her!

Neal—her Neal—was false!

Seized by a sudden, uncontrollable fury, Darthea suddenly sped across the veranda.

There was no definite purpose in her act, no recognizable emotion, no desire other than to satisfy a primitive instinct by clawing at the face of this brazen hussy who had robbed her of faith.

At the sound of her step the couple near the railing turned.

Darthea came upon them abruptly, reached out and felt her hands entwined in the golden blond hair of Bette Oliver, and knew a great feeling of satisfaction.

Then and only then did she look toward the man.

And in that single instant a great weakness and nausea claimed her.

She wavered, gripping Bette's hair more securely for support; felt sudden relief and shame and guilt.

For the face of the man who stared back at her was that of henpecked Gene Metcalf!

That is, with the exception of Darthea Bushell.

Darthea was the newest member, and also the youngest.

She had been married less than a year.

She said: "Men seem pretty capable, to me. I often wonder why they get married at all. There'd be so much more for themselves, if they didn't have to share it with someone."

"My dear," Mrs. Metcalf squeezed lemon into her tea and smiled indulgently—"my dear, no one blames you for your attitude—now. When you've been married as long as I, you'll have a change of heart. Oh, I know how you feel, darling. We were all that way once. So very much in love, so very sure our husbands were all we thought of them to be—loving and devoted and interested only in their wives. But there, I've said enough. Don't let me disillusion you, Darthea, darling. Be happy—and innocent—while you may."

"I am happy and I'm not the least bit disillusioned," said Darthea.

"So don't feel that you have to pity me, Mrs. Metcalf. I don't want Neal to be interested in me and no one else. And—I want him to know other women, if that's what you mean."

Mrs. Metcalf smiled blandly and glanced around at the circle of faces.

"That isn't all I mean, Darthea, darling. Oh, there's no need of feeling hurt about it, or believing that your married life is going to be different from the rest. We've all been through the same thing. Take my Gene, for example. There was a time—after we'd been married about five years—when, had I been a less broad-minded person, we might have ended in separation. But it wasn't for long. And the truth of the matter is I'm glad it happened. For from that day to this I have used the incident to shame him into doing anything I ask. You see, I never completely forgave him."

She broke off to laugh amusedly.

"Oh, yes, that little wayward act of Gene's has its uses. There is, for example, no need to worry now for fear that he will ever stray again. I'm just as sure that Gene's only interest at this moment is with his family as I am that I'm sitting in this chair."

Darthea bit her lip.

She wanted to say she thought Gene was a martyr for even living with such a person.

But she didn't, and while she tried to conjure up a less direct dig, Mrs. Metcalf turned beaming toward Bette Oliver, who was one of the few unmarried members of the club.

Bette was young, extremely pretty and considered in the vernacular of the Tea club as "fast."

She had been admitted only because her career on the legitimate stage was beginning to attract attention and her membership might reflect some glory on the organization.

"And you, my dear Miss Oliver, I'm sure this conversation must be extremely boring to an unmarried lady. And yet I'm equally sure your opinion would be a valuable one, especially—"

Mrs. Metcalf looked coy—"especially since you are so well acquainted with Darthea's handsome young husband."

Darthea was furious.

She might have forgiven most anything—but this!

Such unadulterated, direct insinuation.

Bette Oliver laughed nervously.

She had long since discovered that a woman's attitude toward life and love and things changed with matrimony.

The talk of these older married women sickened her, created in her a feeling of skepticism.

Yet it was as much to her advantage to be a member of the club as it was for these ladies to have her.

She laughed resignedly, without looking at Darthea.

"Please?"

After all, a single lady would hardly be qualified to express a worthwhile opinion about such a weighty subject.

It was the fact that Bette Oliver evaded the issue that set Darthea to thinking.

That and the insinuation in Mrs. Metcalf's voice.

Then, too, there was Bette's nervous little laugh, her direct refusal to meet Darthea's eyes.

The thing at first seemed silly, absurd.

She even smiled a little at thoughts of Neal being false.

Dear, loving Neal.

There had been such a perfect match: so sincere and happy and gay; so broad and free and honest.

No, Neal couldn't be false and act the way he did.

It wasn't human.

Yet the inevitable questions kept popping into her mind, pounding against her brain.

And at last, wearied, she resigned herself, admitted they could not be the regarded forever.

They must be taken, answers found. Had she been a little less...
Did these women know things that she had been told to?

Were they laughing at her, going her?

Was Neal actually interested in Bette Oliver?

Keeping rendezvous with her. It wasn't an impossibility.

Such things had happened before. She shuddered as thoughts leaped into her mind of other women who had gone blindly ahead, loving, adoring, not even suspecting their husbands of infidelity.

Only in the end to have the hurt more poignant, more lasting.

There was a dance that night at the country club.

All the Afternoon Tea women were there with their husbands.

Bette Oliver was there, and a dozen other young, unmarried women.

It was a gay affair.

Darthea had always been a little proud to think that the women who attended the country club dances were infatuated with her handsome husband.

She liked to think that he was hers forever and ever and that she was envied.

Tonight it was different.

She followed him with her eyes. She watched his every movement.

She tried to stifle the hurt when she saw him dancing with other women, smiling into their faces.

She tried not to notice that he seemed to enjoy being with Bette Oliver.

And when toward the end of the evening she saw Neal step through the french doors on to the veranda, saw Bette Oliver follow a moment later, it was with a masterful attempt at self-control that she withheld a scream.

She could not resist the impulse to follow, to satisfy the burning curiosity that was eating at her soul.

She left her partner abruptly, rudely, skirted the dance hall, gained the veranda through a door at the far end of the room.

It was a beautiful summer's night. The great expanse of golf course that fell away at the base of the veranda was flooded with soft, silvery moonlight.

A section of the veranda, the end near which Darthea stood, was in shadow.

She saw dim figures leaning against the railing—a man and a woman.

Darthea slid along the side of the building, noiselessly, suppressing her breathing.

She heard whispered voices—and then abruptly her blood froze.

The girl was Bette Oliver!

There was no mistaking that baby-like profile, etched as it was against the bright moonlight beyond.

Darthea clutched at her throat, felt suddenly weak and sick.

Then it was true!

Mrs. Metcalf and the other women had been laughing at her!

Neal—her Neal—was false!

Seized by a sudden, uncontrollable fury, Darthea suddenly sped across the veranda.

There was no definite purpose in her act, no recognizable emotion, no desire other than to satisfy a primitive instinct by clawing at the face of this brazen hussy who had robbed her of faith.

At the sound of her step the couple near the railing turned.

Darthea came upon them abruptly, reached out and felt her hands entwined in the golden blond hair of Bette Oliver, and knew a great feeling of satisfaction.

Then and only then did she look toward the man.

And in that single instant a great weakness and nausea claimed her.

She wavered, gripping Bette's hair more securely for support; felt sudden relief and shame and guilt.

For the face of the man who stared back at her was that of henpecked Gene Metcalf!

well, admitted they could not be the regarded forever.

They must be taken, answers found. Had she been a little less...
Did these women know things that she had been told to?

Were they laughing at her, going her?

Was Neal actually interested in Bette Oliver?

Keeping rendezvous with her. It wasn't an impossibility.

Such things had happened before. She shuddered as thoughts leaped into her mind of other women who had gone blindly ahead, loving, adoring, not even suspecting their husbands of infidelity.

Only in the end to have the hurt more poignant, more lasting.

There was a dance that night at the country club.

All the Afternoon Tea women were there with their husbands.

Bette Oliver was

Herzog - Mohawks Smack The Registered Shoot at Ulster Traps Sunday

Minasian's Franchise dropped to 12-10 after a 3-2 defeat. Herzog Mohawks' combination team was defeated in the Ulster Traps Sunday at the Ulster Traps. The game was a forfeit. The combination team was defeated in the Ulster Traps Sunday at the Ulster Traps. The game was a forfeit.

So far as the Franchise were concerned, the Mohawks could not have picked a better night to go outside players. Swinging their bats, the Mohawks gave a severe beating for 12 hits, including two circuit clouts. Every thing Embree threw over was slammed back at him.

Bob Cullum and Dewey Hornbeck rapped out three hits apiece for the Herzogs. Cullum enjoyed his best hitting spree of the season with a single, double and homer. Hornbeck had two singles and a double. Jimmy Steigerwald's round tripper to deep center was the best hit of the game. Embree made up for his pitching deficiency by belting out a double and two singles for the Franchise.

Four singles and a bad error by Atkins had Embree hanging on the ropes in the first inning when the Herzogs gained a 1-0 lead. Hornbeck, Slover, Thorne and Cullum connected for the hits. The Franchise came back strong, however, and rolled up four in their half, after two out, on singles by DeCicco, Atkins and Embree. Al Short's first triple and a walk to Minasian.

Cullum and Steigerwald connected for homers in the second, with D. Hornbeck's second single and a walk in between, for a 6-4 lead. With Steigerwald on the mound the Franchise took advantage of his wildness and scored two runs without the aid of a hit.

A walk to Purvis, Embree's double and Short's second three-bagger showed the Franchise ahead 8-6 in the fourth. Embree horse-collared the Herzogs for three innings but the Franchise went wild in the final sixth. Flanagan, K. Hornbeck and Cullum reached Embree for singles. D. Hornbeck doubled. Purvis, Lamb and Atkins committed atrocious errors. La Prairie walked and Steigerwald was hit by a pitched ball. All this commotion amounted to six runs. Embree and Minasian hit safely in the Franchise half of the sixth but were left stranded.

The Hose Companies Will Try It Again

On Friday evening at Block Park there will be a real treat in store for the baseball fans. The Rescue Hook and Ladder will cross bats with the Cornell Hose Co. in a return engagement.

Manager Coughlin of the rescue aggregation has announced that he thinks it would be a splendid idea if Manager Martin's boys used a big, soft ball to see if they couldn't win a game for a change.

Mr. Coughlin also announced that his lineup would include such noted horseshoe tossers as Hood Dittus, Osterlander, Radell, Dunbar, Pincus, Smoke Eye, Glennon, etc., etc. At this point he was fast becoming exhausted, but with one final effort he roared, "Where's Martin's lineup, or has he got cold feet?"

THE Spotlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

The Old Haig.

(In line with Rochester's testimonial tournament.)
He picked up the cards as they happened to fall.
Wit never a squawk or kick;
Sometimes holding no tops at all.
But never blowing a trick.
He has taken the breaks—however they came.
As part of the routine strife;
And the tougher they came—the better the game
Is the way that he's looked at life.

His luck's been good—and his luck's been bad,
But he's put fate on the spot.
By giving the battle the best he had
From the first to the final shot.
He could give and take—as a champion should—
And I've seen his foemen reel.
As he whalloped one with the whistling wood—
Then reached for the deadly steel!

He has faced the gales with a smile and song,
Where the sun and the rain were gone;
For he knows the road is drab and long
For those who have missed the fun;
They come and go, as the green's last cup
Summons them, year by year;
But here's to a heart that is always up—
I drink to the Cavalier!

Casting Odds in Dice.

Several flocks of correspondents wish to know how we arrive at the odds of 351 to 245 against the caster in a crap game, and some of them are rather indignant about it.
Several years ago the Bureau of Information at Washington figured it all out, reporting these odds. We put the matter up to an expert mathematician who verified the figures reported.
The same expert also promised to send us the formula, for which we are patiently waiting.
The odds are not 3 to 2, as so many seem to think, but closer to a 7-5 basis. In the long run the game is practically an even thing, since the caster or dice thrower doesn't hold the dice all the time.
He also takes while some opponent is doing the tossing or casting. In the meanwhile it might be better to wait until the formula arrives so that exact proof of the correct odds can be established.

Facing and Taxes.

Another noncombatant or correspondent wants to know just how much money different states take in from horse racing at various tracks. Up at Rockingham Park, in Salem, N. H., it was reported that 40,000 people bet $9,000,000 during the 21-day meeting.
In New York the tax collections have been heavy. Last year, in twelve states where racing had legalized betting, the following incomes were turned over to state treasuries:

Maryland	$816,000
Illinois	$570,116
New Hampshire	$447,567
Florida	$366,996
Kentucky	$291,500
Michigan	$125,000
Ohio	$104,055
California	$103,662
Washington	$80,359
Texas	$50,000
Oregon	$24,658
West Virginia	$20,000

Tigers and Yankees.

There seems to be a general feeling in the Yankee camp that Mickey Cochrane's embattled Tigers from Detroit are due to lose most of their fans and claws on the next eastern trip.

This may turn out to be a bad guess. The same Tigers, when April buds were replete with dew, were picked to finish no better than fifth.

After clawing their way to the top they were again picked to hit the soapy chute at almost any given moment. In the meanwhile they have refused to do anything at all except keep winning ball games.

They have shown no signs of cracking at any seam to date, moving along at top speed week after week, which is a pretty fair test where the margin is so thin.

Some weeks back Mickey Cochrane figured the Yanks were due for a heavy fall when they hit the western road again. The Yanks also refused to blow, after one or two wobbling motions that indicated an impending slump.

It was Cochrane's idea that such young pitchers as Broaca, Murphy, Deebong, etc., would not be able to stand the pressure of a pennant stretch. But their arms still seem to be hanging on.

The best guess to be offered at this moment indicates a hard, close race all the way through between the two leaders. The brilliant pitching of Lefty Gomez and the terrific cannonading of Lou Gehrig have been large factors in keeping the Yanks where they are—and neither Gomez nor Gehrig is the type to crumple up.

Whatever happens, Mickey Cochrane and his Tigers have been the season's biggest sensation, as far as baseball goes. They have held up for a matter of four months, approximately, which is all the test anyone can ask from stamina and skill combined.

They still have a great pitcher, good pitching and a star infield while the Tiger outfield is no all-star cast. It has turned out a far better job than anyone figured four months ago. For which an old-timer by the name of Goose Goslin has been a little responsible.

Robinson, One of Baseball's Immortals, Died at Atlanta

Atlanta, Aug. 9 (AP)—That famous crack the Cracker Jack also. I say old Orsile, Wilbert Robinson, is they can win."

Death came just as Uncle Bobby, one of baseball's greatest figures, died. He was called the "Big Boy" and was married for nearly a half century.

Robinson was born in Hingham, Mass., in June of 1854. He began his baseball career with the Boston team and later joined the Philadelphia Athletics.

From 1886 until 1890 he was with the Athletics. In 1890 he became an Orioles and it was while playing with this team that he was a part of some of baseball's great—Hugie Jennings, Willie Keeler, John McGraw and others.

In 1904 Robinson was injured and went into retirement. John McGraw sent for him in 1911 and he joined the New York Giants as coach.

He went to Brooklyn in 1914 as manager. The Brooklyn team was bankrupt and about to go under. Under Robinson's guiding genius it was two pennants and became the second franchise in the National League and the second richest in all baseball topped only by the New York Yankees.

He was president and manager from 1926 to 1930—too heavy a burden for him in 1931 but two years later he was persuaded to come to Atlanta as president. His greatest friend, Colonel Tillinghast L. Huston, former owner of the New York Yankees, persuaded him to take the job.

He established a baseball record that still stands—six singles and a double in one game.

At the hospital it was discovered he was suffering from a hemorrhage of the brain. The last sacrament was administered by the Rev. Edward McGrath.

As Robinson awaited the ambulance he said to the doctor: "This broken arm doesn't hurt me. I'm an old Oriole. Wrap it up and let me stay here."

Then he turned to a friend and said: "Maybe this broken arm will keep me from playing baseball."
